

BEEF COMPANY 'SABOTAGE' ROSE

Accountant Tells How National Loaned Millions to Keep Its Rivals Going.
BIG PROFIT IN HIDES
Witness Asserts $3,669,050 Was Received During Period When That Item Was Omitted.

[SPECIAL DESPATCH TO THE HERALD.]
CHICAGO, Ill., Wednesday.—That the National Packing Company, the alleged clearing house for the packers, was friendly in a business way toward its supposed rivals was brought out in the "Beef Trust" trial to-day. William E. Weber, chief accountant of the National, told on the witness stand about the loaning of $1,000,000 to the New York Dressed Beef and Provision Company between 1907 and 1910 to meet its obligations. The firm of Viles & Robbins, of St. Joseph, the witness also said, was in financial despair when the National lent a helping hand.

Mr. Weber exonerated Edward Tilden, president of the National, of any share in estimating the "test cost" of beef. He also denied he consulted National officials G. Langier, Armour, or Morris interests in arriving at a method of computation.

According to Mr. Weber, although no allowance was made for hides in 1908 and during a part of 1910 in figuring the test cost of beef, the National Packing Company showed that in that period the corporation received from the sale of hides $3,669,050. The witness admitted that the value of hides during this period varied from two to four cents a pound.

Weekly summaries of the G. H. Hammond Company, a subsidiary of the National Packing Company, were traced to the Rookery Building, through National Packing Company, former margin financier for the concern, who was placed on the witness stand after Mr. Weber.

Mr. Langier was not certain who received the summaries at that place, but he knew they were sent by telegraph on Mondays. The government's charge is that the packers met each Tuesday in the Rookery Building and made agreements as to margins and shipments for the week. The evidence regarding the summaries is a new development in the trial. Herebefore the government had dwelt upon the alleged simultaneous discontinuance and resumption of allowances for hides. The sending of the summaries, including the average margin, average price received and weekly total of shipments to the Rookery Building, the federal prosecutors assert, goes direct to the basis of the directors' room and the National Packing Company and there received information as to the business of each concern.

TRAIN ORATORS ON SUFFRAGE

Three Classes Being Formed, and Fifty Suffragettes Will Be Graduated.

Fifty trained suffragette orators will on May 1 be graduated from the Woman Suffrage Party classes in public speaking which are now being formed all over the city and will be ready to carry on the campaign by wordy battles. Miss Mary Phelps, A. M., of Cornell, trainer of orators there, has charge of one of the classes, which will meet every Monday at Carnegie Hall. Another class has been formed by Mrs. Frank Keep and a third has been organized by the wife of a city official.

In the Bronx a similar series of classes is being organized. It is expected that in a few days every Assembly district will have its oratorical training school, turning out women orators in large numbers.

WHAT WOMEN FIND IN THE SHOPS

At this time of year the afternoon tea table and its accessories are foremost in the minds of many women. One of the specialties which has gained wide popularity this season is a leaf sugar rack. This is sold by R. H. Macy & Co. and in quadruple form is priced at $1.50. In sterling silver the rack is priced at $5.00. A sterling silver lemon dish and fork are shown by the same firm for $3.25. Tea table damasks and napkins range in price according to quality.

A new house which is said to be very popular in Paris for early spring wear is the taffeta changeant blouse. Chic models in this style, reproduced from Parisian models, are shown exclusively by John Wanamaker and are priced at $5, $5.50 and $7.50.

Most women use a perfume of one kind or another, and among some adhere closely to one particular kind, many are always searching for some new odor, something that will be just a little different from the others. B. Altman & Co. are selling a new extract called "Cologne." This is made by Oby, of Paris, and sells for $12 a bottle.

For short trips out of town, for carrying parcels to and from the city or for journeys necessitating a hurried start, many persons prefer a raitan suit case because of its lightness and serviceability. A suit case of this material, with leather trimmed corners, stitched body strap and bolts, was seen at John Daniel, Sons & Co. priced at $2.25. This particular case is twenty-four inches long. The case in a thirty inch length sells for $3.50.

The blue serge promises to be as fashionable for spring wear as it has been during the winter months. Women in purchasing a suit of this kind often wait until this time of year and take advantage of the price reductions. A suit of blue serge seen at Oppenheimer, Collins & Co. is in a medium weight material, suitable for year around wear. It is trimmed with braid and velvet and is satin lined. The price is $20.

One of the new spring models in dresses is a new black and white dotted collar with smart touches of satin, a lace collar and with a tucked net yoke and cuffs. A dress in this style seen at Lord & Taylor's is priced at $11.50.

Listed under the department head of "House-Help" at the Greenhut-Siegel Cooper store is a special offering which is attracting many housewives. The "house-help" in question is a sixteen-inch plate glass shelf intended for a place in the bathroom. With the shelf come four ounce bottles with ground glass stoppers, labeled as follows:—Listerine, hair tonic, alcohol, peroxide, ammonia and witch hazel. The set complete with two nickel brackets and screws is $1.65.

One of the special offerings in waists noticed at Hearn's is a navy blue chiffon over white chiffonette. The waist is hand embroidered, has net yoke and cuffs and Chantilly lace bands. It is marked to sell for $25.

Catholic, Protestant and Jewish Girls at St. Paul's Luncheon Club Celebration

BUSINESS WOMEN'S LUNCHEON CLUB OF ST. PAUL'S CHAPEL

Parish House Is Filled with Stenographers, Bookkeepers and Clerks.

750 MEMBERS, 350 WAIT

Best of Fulton Market Served Daily at Low Prices to Wage-Earning Young Women.

St. Paul's Chapel Club for Business and Professional Women celebrated its fifth birthday last evening by giving a reception in the luncheon room on the third floor of the parish house, in the rear of old St. Paul's Episcopal Church, at Broadway and Fulton street. The hours were from half-past five to half-past seven o'clock, and a great majority of the seven hundred young women who eat their luncheon there six days of the week were present.

The members were received by the Board of Management, among whom are the Rev. Dr. William Montague Geer, the vicar, who founded the club; Miss Gertrude E. Geer, his sister, who is the chairman of the committee in charge; Mrs. L. H. Truxworth Wallace and Miss Mary E. Murray, secretary of the House Committee. After the reception there was music and dancing.

The exact date of the anniversary is January 28, which will be Sunday this year, so yesterday was selected for the celebration.

There are 750 members of the luncheon club and a waiting list of 350. Lack of room limits the membership, but Dr. Geer is turning over ideas in his mind as to how to enlarge the quarters.

The young women, who eat luncheon between half-past eleven in the morning and two o'clock in the afternoon, are stenographers, bookkeepers and clerks in downtown business offices. They pay twenty-five cents a month dues and any one can join irrespective of creed. There are Roman Catholics, Jews, Protestants and young women of no church. No religious teaching is thrust upon them, but many attend the services in old St. Paul's and several have been confirmed.

The luncheon room is not only entirely self-supporting but it has a surplus. This is largely due to the fact that the club has to pay no rent. Instead it spends money on furnishing the other rooms of the parish house, particularly in buying pictures.

The average price paid for a luncheon is fifteen or sixteen cents. The highest is forty-five cents and the lowest ten cents. The superintendent buys her meats at the Fulton Market and the girls get the best. They wait upon themselves. The club is in no sense a charity and the girls resent any such suggestion.

When a young woman is ill flowers are sent to her. There is a library containing standard works, which is largely used, as well as two rest rooms. There also is an employment bureau.

9 SMITHSON JURY, BARNARD GIRLS NEED "TEMPER"

Bulletin Tells Them Proper Kind Makes Examinations a Positive Pleasure.

Barnard College, or rather the Barnard Bulletin, the weekly paper of the school, has made a discovery which is liable to rank in the estimation of the students with the discovery of America by C. Columbus or the discovery of gold in California.

The discovery is that to be a successful student a girl must have a "philosophic temper." It makes examinations a positive pleasure. Many of the local pursuers of degrees yesterday admitted that they were looking for "philosophic tempers" because the mid-year examinations at Barnard are in full swing.

"I've tried 'cribs,'" confessed one girl, who thought it better that her name should not be mentioned, "and they always ask the wrong questions. I've won golf cups because they are more susceptible to the touch of a pencil, but still I flunk courses." If a "philosophic temper" would get something out of it besides a passing mark.

"And last year," said another, "I wrote out a lot of formulas and things and dates on crackers, and then was going to read the answers, then the crackers, thus destroying the evidence. But the crackers got soft in my pocket and crushed up, and there was 'it'."

"About 'F' I should guess," replied the first, who favored the cut route.

"You ought to be a clairvoyant."

"F" in the parlance of the campus stands for "flunk" or "failure" or "forgot" or almost anything but "passed."

"And now that they have adopted the honor system one needs something like a 'philosophic temper,'" murmured another. The Barnard Bulletin says that "philosophic temper" is taking a course with the idea of getting something out of it besides a passing mark.

"When you have once entered upon a course," declares the Bulletin, "try to stir up and maintain a little intellectual curiosity about the subject. Try, without alighting the assigned work, to find out something on your own hook about it, something that the professor has not told you and perhaps does not know."

"Can you imagine that?" exclaimed the girl who had tried the cracker route last year. "For instance, try to get something out of History A and find out something the professor hasn't told you and perhaps doesn't know. Why, he's told us everything over three times. No, there's no such thing as a 'philosophic temper.'"

TELLS OF AID TO HORSE.

At a meeting of the Horse Aid Society yesterday afternoon at its home, No. 38 West Fortieth street, Mrs. Jacob M. Ehrlich, president of the society, related how she and P. A. Hudson, one of its directors, were compelled to appeal to the police for protection when they were threatened by the owner of a crippled horse in a stable in Ninth avenue Saturday night, when they tried to save the horse from abuse. Mrs. Ehrlich said that she had the owner of the horse put under bonds to keep the horse.

Members of the society voted to start a movement to have the streets of the city paved with granite blocks to make better footing for the horses. Another meeting of the society will be held at its headquarters next Tuesday evening at eight o'clock to discuss the question.

CARDINAL GIBBONS PRAISES NEW YORK

Says City Paid a Well Merited and Splendid Tribute to Cardinal Farley.

"This is the first time in the history of America that an American Cardinal has visited an American Cardinal," said Cardinal Gibbons last night to a Herald reporter in an interview at the residence of Cardinal Farley, No. 452 Madison avenue. The Cardinal of Baltimore arrived in this city about four o'clock yesterday afternoon to attend the solemn Pontifical mass of thanksgiving this morning in St. Patrick's Cathedral for the elevation of Archbishop Farley and the Catholic Club reception to-night.

"I recall the time, some years back, to be sure, when as a young priest I had the honor to visit the late Cardinal McCloskey, New York's first and only other Cardinal. He was an old gentleman then. To-day I am visiting a youthful old gentleman, also a Cardinal of New York."

Speaking of the illumination of the Cathedral, Cardinal Gibbons exclaimed:—"It is beautiful, beautiful!" Asked if he agreed with some writers of letters to the Herald that it was wasted money, Cardinal Gibbons said:—"No."

"By no means. Nothing is too good for God. And this is an honor to religion. It is money well spent. To all who complain at the illuminations I would say that our Blessed Redeemer answered that argument long ago Himself. Judas complained of the waste when Mary Magdalen washed the feet of Jesus Christ with precious ointment. The answer to Judas was, 'The poor ye have with you always, but I have not.'"

"In my opinion New York has paid to Cardinal Farley a well merited honor. Of course New York can do things in a splendid way, and she always does. It is perhaps the most influential Catholic city in the world, due to its numbers and wealth."

"I have been particularly gratified to read that non-Catholics have joined in this celebration. The merit of Cardinal Farley as a citizen is gauged very highly by the disinterested testimony of those who are not of the household of the Catholic faith."

After the interview Cardinal Gibbons and Cardinal Farley left the house and entered a carriage. They drove slowly around the Cathedral so Cardinal Gibbons could get a good look at the illuminations and the 125,000 persons in the streets. Then they went up Fifth avenue.

NO DEATHS AT SANITARIUM.

All the 236 Tuberculosis Patients at Stony Wold Show Improvement.

There were no deaths among the 236 tuberculosis cases treated at the Stony Wold Sanitarium last year, it was reported at the annual meeting, in the Hotel Manhattan yesterday afternoon. It cost $66,181 to run the institution for the year, leaving a deficit of $183, the smallest that Stony Wold has had in its history.

A gift of $10,000 was received last year from the estate of Mrs. Gardner Wetherbee, and one of $10,000 from Mrs. Walter Geer for a bed in memory of her sister, Miss Martha Potter, and $400 was contributed for a new play pavilion, permitting the use of the old one exclusively for an out-of-door school. The auxiliary contributed $5,000, the largest sum being given by Auxiliary No. 17, of which Mrs. Benjamin Stern is president.

Of the cases discharged as cured twenty-four were children and 114 adults. The average length of residence of the adults was 18 weeks. Eighty-nine gained in weight, the greatest individual gain being forty-four pounds. All of the children gained in weight, the average gain being 11.74 pounds. Their ages ranged from six to fourteen years, their average residence was 18.7 weeks.

ASK STATE AID FOR WIDOWS.

Federation of Sisterhoods Believes Government Should Support Mothers.

A strong sentiment in favor of State aid for poor mothers with dependent children was expressed at the sixteenth annual meeting of the Federation of Sisterhoods, in the Hotel Astor yesterday afternoon.

In her report the president, Mrs. William Einstein, said:—"Whatever our differences may be in our belief, whatever the individual needs of our sisterhoods may be, we all have the universal problem to solve—the care of the widowed mother and the development of the children of her children. Therefore it is one basic upon which we all must unite, governmental aid for widowed mothers."

Romance Follows Christian Worker

Evangelist Soloist Weds and His Pianist and Only Son Announce Engagements.

Romance has followed the trail of the Christian workers who travel about the country with the Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman. His solo singer was married last month, his pianist will wed in February and his only son, J. Wilbur Chapman, Jr., has announced his engagement to Miss Alaine Bonay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ashton M. Bonay, of No. 603 West 129th street.

When Dr. and Mrs. Chapman left on the Cedric yesterday morning for Australia, Young Mr. Chapman and his fiancée were at the White Star line pier to see them off. Among the last words Dr. Chapman said was "Goodbye, my children."

Young Mr. Chapman is a senior at Williams College, Williamstown, Mass. He is ivy orator and a member of the D. K. E. fraternity. As soon as he is graduated he and Miss Bonay will be married, and Dr. Chapman has obtained the promise of her parents to have the wedding take place at his home at Jamaica Estates, which will be especially opened for the event, although Dr. Chapman will be thousands of miles away.

One of Dr. Chapman's wedding presents will be a year's trip around the world. The young couple will leave for Australia immediately after their wedding. Mr. Chapman, Jr., will later study for the ministry. The first year he will attend Auburn Theological Seminary, this State; the second year the University of Edinburgh, and the third year Auburn again. Dr. Chapman will build them a bungalow at Jamaica Estates near his own home.

Miss Bonay was educated at Lake-

MR. CHOATE, AT 80, UNDERPAID LABOR IS HALE AND HAPPY IN SCHOOL BOARD

Distinguished Diplomat and Lawyer Observes Anniversary Quietly with Family.

Members Have Stormy Session, Precipitated by a Woman's Salary of $300 a Year.

Although yesterday was Joseph H. Choate's eightieth birthday anniversary his friends agree it was one of the happiest of the many in his long and busy life. On the previous evening he was the light and life of the dinner and dance given at the Reid mansion for the Duke and Duchess of Connaught. After a refreshing morning's slumber Mr. Choate sent word to callers that he would devote the day to his family and friends and the evening to the usual festivities.

The old time banquet held last evening at the Choate mansion was a family affair, with Mr. Choate at the head of the table and a few intimate friends occupying seats near him. It was not long ago that the golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Choate was celebrated at their home in the Berkshire Hills, where messages and presents from friends on both sides of the Atlantic were received.

A close friend said yesterday that Mr. Choate should be the most envied of men, for his whole life has been a succession of successes, and the sunshine of his nature seemed to give him new strength as the years glided away. His good humor, together with his expert knowledge of the law and of public affairs, early made him a leader at the Bar, and his great courage in difficult circumstances, with a mastery of all the points in his cases, won for him the esteem and friendship of many prominent persons.

Born in the old Puritan town of Salem, Mass., graduating from the Dane Law School, now the Harvard Law School, he arrived in New York in 1854 and entered the office of James C. Carter. His ability immediately attracted attention, and soon he was second partner of the biggest firm of the period, Evans, Choate & Beaman. More recently he was president of the New York State Constitutional Convention, Ambassador to England and representative of the United States at The Hague. He has received many honors both in Europe and America.
